Three elementary schools -- Jonesville in Lee County, Maywood in Craig County, and Gladstone in Nelson County did not meet State Board standards, and were not accredited; 316 elementary schools were accredited but advised of deficiencies; and 107 were approved but warned of deficiencies which, if not corrected could jeopardize future accreditation.

Of the 479 high schools accredited by the State Board last Friday 300 were advised of deficiences and three were approved with a warning.

Recommenadations attecting accreditation of private elementary and secondary schools will be made to the State Board in April.

The State Board also received a report dealing with alternative methods for increasing compensatory education for disadvantaged children. The report, prepared by consultants for the National Educational Finance Project, was presented to the State Board by Dr. J. Fred Young, deputy superintendent of public instruction.

Dr. Young told the State Board that staff members of the Department of Education have begun a study of research and programs in other states in an effort to determine what Virginia can and should do to meet the educational needs of disadvantaged children beginning with the 1974-76 biennium.

Discussing the problem with the State Board, Dr. Young said federally funded compensatory education programs have averaged about $150 per child above regular instructional costs, but that this amount has not been adequate to meet the needs of disadvantaged children.

Broken Cisterns Repaired

I wish to share with you this week my morning Devotional text for March the 30th, 1973 taken from Jer. 2:13 which reads thus - My people have committed two evils; they have forsaken me the fountain of living waters, and hewed them out cisterns, that can hold no water.

Attending a revival in a southern town in America was a man for his periodic conversions and backslidings. Moved with emotion, he prayed with fervor that he receive an abundant of the Holy Spirit, also at the revival was an old lady who knew the man. She cried out, "Don't give it to him, Lord. He leaks."

This homely illustration is a vivid picture of Israel in Jeremiah's day. The people "leaked". They were broken cisterns that could hold no water. God had given Israel as a people the responsibility of offering the water of life to the nations about them. He brought Israel from Egpt. to the Promised Land. He gave leaders, priests, and prophets to teach them the way of God. They were to be an example. Living up to God's teachings, demonstrating His love by loving and respecting one another. Their influence could have been rewarding. Israel and Judah came to the parting of the ways. The nation was divided. God's laws were broken. Idolatrous practices were established. God gave them many opportunities to repent but the old lady's words, they "leaked". The Israelites came to Jeremiah and acknowledged this faults. They asked him to pray to God on their behalf, saying that they would do whatever God asked of them, but when God's message came to them, they deliberately rejected it (see Jer. 42). The water of life flowed away, and Israel and Judah became dry cisterns, a barren people as far as God's Word and desires were concerned.

Two evils - forsaking God, making imperfect cisterns - a picture of ancient Israel. Is this also a picture of spiritual Israel? Are we rejecting the water of Life? Are we more interested in doing our way than doing God's way? If we are we are broken cisterns.

We don't have to be. God will help us to repair the breach. He will help us to make our cisterns (our lives) watertight. Through His Spirit He will unite us with Christ. And once again we can be filled with the water of life. What a Wonderful Saviour is Jesus our Lord.

OAKVILLE

Mr. Wiley Moore came home Sunday from the hospital. He had been there for treatment.

We are sorry Mr. Charlie Moore had to go back to the hospital. We hope him a speedy recovery.

Mrs. Aubrey Moore and Mrs. Clarke Moore visited Mr. Tom Moore at the hospital Friday. A tree fell that he had cut and broke his leg. He was down on his farm near Appomattox. We hope him a speedy recovery.

Mr. Dot Wilkerson, Mrs. Ruby Lewis, Mrs. Elizabeth Marsh, Mrs. Aubrey Moore, Mrs. Edd Hillsman and Mrs. Clarke Moore attended the District III meeting last Tuesday at Sweet Briar college.

Glad to say Mrs. Lula Martin is improving after her accident.

The W.M.W.S. will meet Thursday night at Mt. Comfort at 7:30: We hope all the members will be present.
